

Join the In-Mind Team: Help us make psychology accessible to everyone!

What is In-Mind?

In-Mind is a volunteer-driven project dedicated to sharing psychological research. We give researchers a platform to present their work in an engaging, accessible, and scientifically rigorous way—psychology by scientists, for everyone.

Our journal publishes freely available, ad-free articles across all areas of psychology. We are the English version of In-Mind. The journal also publishes in German, French, Dutch, and Italian. Visit us at:

Who are we looking for?

We are seeking active researchers across all stages of an academic career and enthusiastic Master's students with a passion for psychological science communication. Our journal is published in English, so strong English skills are helpful, but we welcome applicants from around the globe!

1. Editors (3 positions)

We are recruiting for editors with expertise in:

- Clinical Psychology
- Developmental Psychology
- Industrial and Organizational Psychology

Editors manage article submissions and oversee the peer review process, where experts assess both scientific accuracy and readability for a general audience. Unlike traditional journals, In-Mind publishes short overview articles (1500–2000 words) written for curious readers, not specialists. Example for article topics are: Are there learning styles? How does human touch work? How does the brain process art?

Your profile:

- Active researcher in one of the above fields
- Either holding or currently pursuing a PhD

2. Social Media Team (3 positions)

Are you passionate about sharing science and social media? We are looking for three team members to help expand our outreach. Currently, we are active on:

- LinkedIn: In-Mind on LinkedIn
- Bluesky: @in-mindmagazine.bsky.social

We're especially excited to welcome team members who bring fresh ideas and would like to explore new content formats!

Your profile:

- Pursuing a PhD or Master's in psychology or a related field
- Strong interest in science communication

3. Digital support (2 positions)

Help keep In-Mind running smoothly behind the scenes! These tasks include:

- Uploading articles to our website
- Coordinating emails and communication
- Planning meetings and improving workflows

Your profile:

- Pursuing a PhD or Master's in psychology or a related field
- Strong interest in science communication

Interested?

Fill out the application form, and we'll get in touch. Selected candidates will be invited for a short interview.

We are looking forward to hearing from you!

Deadline for applications: May 1, 2025
